FIRST IN, LAST OUT

The International Association of Fire Fighters (IAFF) represents the brave men and women who respond to emergencies across Connecticut—from putting out fires to handling medical calls and disaster response. These are the local heroes who protect lives, homes, and neighborhoods every day.

BACKED BY THE UNION

Connecticut's IAFF locals fight for fair pay, top-notch safety gear, and strong benefits so firefighters can focus on saving lives, not worrying about job security. The union makes sure members have a voice in their workplace and the resources to stay safe while protecting others.

TRAIN HARD, RISE HIGHER

IAFF members are among the most highly trained professionals out there. Through union-supported training programs and continuing education, firefighters learn the latest life-saving techniques and leadership skills—preparing them to grow their careers while making a real impact.

COMMUNITY FIRST, ALWAYS

IAFF locals don't just respond to emergencies—they're deeply involved in their communities. From charity events and school visits to supporting mental health for first responders, the union helps make firehouses hubs of service, trust, and resilience across Connecticut.
